

INIAN
ISLANDS
INSTITUTE

Climate of Hope

Living Alaskan and working for change

Inian Islands Institute

Join us in a week-long, immersive course for adults – a journey into the heart of the Alaskan wilderness and into the science and solutions of climate change.

- Experience Alaskan life at an authentic homestead that strives to model sustainability
- Partake in meaningful physical work in service of the campus and community – chopping firewood, fishing, and tending the garden
- Hike and paddle through the most magnificent wilderness in North America, on the front lines of climate change
- Learn the essentials of climate science from Zach Brown, PhD
- Gain practical tools for solving the climate crisis from Zach and renowned author Kim Heacox

DETAILS

- June 8-15, 2019
- 12 Participants
- $3500 for rustic “student” accommodations; $4000 for more comfortable “B&B style” accommodations (limited availability). Prices are all-inclusive from Juneau, AK; participants are responsible for their own travel to and from Juneau.

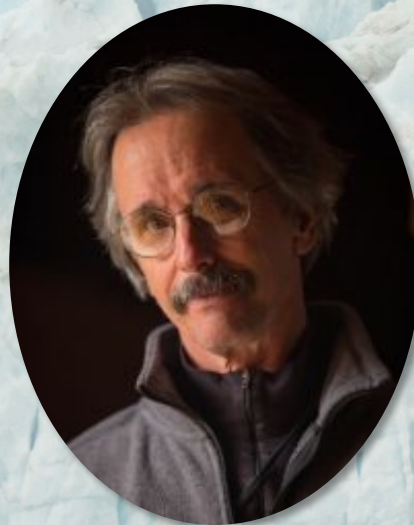

Please submit a short statement of interest: up to 250 words explaining what draws you to this course. Priority will be given to those who genuinely seek to help solve the climate crisis.

FMI, or to sign up, contact Zach Brown at zwbrown@inianislandsinstitute.org or 907-697-2210

Zach Brown

After completing his PhD in climate science at Stanford University, Zach hiked and paddled 2300 miles to his homeland of Alaska to found a field school. He now serves as director of Inian Islands Institute.

Kim Heacox

Kim is an Alaskan author and a passionate champion of public lands and climate action. He has written 14 books including The Only Kayak and John Muir and the Ice that Started a Fire.