

Environmental Rhetoric

The Art of Persuasion in a Time of Crisis

A 3-credit course through University of Alaska, based at Inian Islands Institute

July 18 – 25, 2020

Climate Chaos. Habitat Loss.
Mass Extinction. Overpopulation.
Consumerism and Waste.

Confront the array of threats to the Earth (and those who would expedite them) with confidence, clarity, and the tools to inspire action. Environmental Rhetoric is essential for those willing to lend their voices to answer some of the fundamental questions of our time.

*2018 student Carly Dennis,
learning to speak truth to power*

This week-long session is leadership boot camp for those who feel compelled to take these issues head-on, featuring lectures, student activities, wilderness exploration and much more in gorgeous Southeast Alaska, led by author-professor Daniel Lee Henry and Inian Islands Institute Director Zachary Brown.

Fireside presentations at Inian Islands Institute

For $400 you receive: 3 UA credits, transportation from Juneau, meals, lodging, and a medley of skills suited to saving the Earth.

For more information, or to join the course, please contact Dan Henry (mudbase@gmail.com). Please include a short paragraph (no more than 300 words) describing why this course excites you and how it will further your work towards positive change.